The public hall after the coronavirus

The Kanagawa prefecture's emergency declaration was lifted on May 25, and Yokohama's public facilities could be opened with restrictions from June 1st.

The content of the restrictions was to regulate dance, exercise, singing and playing musical instruments. Still, as the facility operator has been waiting for the notice of reopening this facility, we were delighted by the fact that it can be restarted rather than the risk of coronavirus infection. However, the coronavirus did not completely end, so it seemed that it took a little more time to do cultural activities.

Probably all cultural institutions have experience. And it will take a lot of time to get back to normal operation.

But we still believe that many customers will come back someday.
